

GlobaLogix expands to support Haynesville project work

Published: May 19, 2010

GlobaLogix Inc., a Houston-based oilfield automation company, has opened an operations center in Carthage, TX to support the company's controls and automation, I&E and communications field activity in the Haynesville shale area.

Regional project work includes SCADA, network design, system engineering, PLC integration and programming, communication network services, equipment installation and support services. The Carthage office joins GlobaLogix' other offices in Houston, Denver, and Canonsburg, PA.